Apple User Groups Signature and Trademark Guidelines

Overview

These guidelines show the correct treatment of the Apple User Groups signature in user group promotional literature, merchandise, communications, and web sites, and how to credit Apple trademarks in user group names. Please note that use of Apple trademarks (including the Apple User Groups signature) requires a signed license agreement with Apple Computer, Inc., available from the Apple Software Licensing web site at <http://developer.apple.com/mkt/swl/agreements.html>.

Additional guidelines for using Apple trademarks in user group names are included in the Apple User Groups Trademark License.

Vertical version of the
Apple User Groups signature

Apple User Groups Signature

The Apple User Groups signature consists of the black Apple logo and the Apple User Groups logotype (that is, the words “Apple User Groups” set in specially designed type). It is available in either a horizontal or a vertical configuration. The horizontal configuration is the preferred version of the signature.

The signature can be applied to user group literature, signage, promotional merchandise, web sites, and other noncommercial user group communications, as long as the Apple User Groups signature is clearly subordinate to your particular user group identity. Do not incorporate any elements of the Apple User Groups signature into your user group, company, or business identity, and never use an Apple User Groups signature in place of that identity.

Horizontal version of the
Apple User Groups signature

Always reproduce the complete Apple User Groups signature from the electronic artwork provided. Do not alter the signature in any way. Do not remove the Apple logo or alter the relationship between the elements of the signature. Do not change the typeface or alter the spacing between letters in the logotype.

Never reproduce the Apple User Groups signature using logo artwork that has been rendered to look three-dimensional. On the web, do not animate, rotate, or distort it in any way. Do not use any part of the signature as a decorative element, background, or pattern.

Color

Always reproduce the Apple User Groups signature in solid black. No other logo or typeface color can be used.

The preferred background color for the Apple User Groups is white or off-white. The signature can also appear on other light colors, as long as the legibility of the signature is not diminished.
